PREFACE.

When the first edition of the "Canadian Newspaper Directory" was issued in 1892 the publishers were congratulated upon producing the most correct and comprehensive newspaper handbook of Canadian journalism ever presented to the public. In that issue over 200 more newspapers were reported than were given in the same year by any of the American Newspaper Directories which assumed to cover Canadian territory. The details were admittedly more accurate than those of any other Directory, while no previous compilation embraced a gazetteer of each town containing a newspaper office. The history of Canadian journalism was also the most complete that has yet been published, and has formed the ground work of every historical sketch of Canadian newspapers that has appeared since that time, though it is not in every case that due credit has been given to this work.

The Directory, though the best of its kind yet issued, and though unanimously praised by the leading Canadian newspapers, was, we regret to say, not a financial success, and for this reason we have not felt justified in getting out another edition until now. In addition to the financial question, there were mechanical difficulties in the way, as no printing office in Montreal was equipped with a sufficient quantity of type and material of the kind required to get out the lists with the rapidity we desired. We have now, however, overcome this by the purchase of an outfit of type especially selected for the work, and we hope with the increased support of those who so warmly approved of the first edition, to issue it regularly hereafter. With our present outfit, we shall be able to keep the type standing, so that the cost of future editions may be somewhat reduced.

Among the new features of this issue will be found four newspaper maps, covering the whole Dominion, and especially engraved for this work. This, we believe, is the first instance in which maps have been used in connection with a newspaper handbook to give special prominence to the newspaper towns. Maps have been issued, with other Newspaper Directories but these were general geographical maps. The present maps give in a very prominent way the name and correct location of every city, town and village, in which one or more newspapers are published. The advantage of such a series of maps to the general advertiser, as well as to the journalist, will be readily appreciated. The advertiser who wishes to reach a given territory, or a certain class of the community, will see at once what local mediums cover the field. For instance, if it is desired to reach mariners or vessel owners, the advertiser may tell at a glance the number of papers located on the lake or seaports of the Dominion, and may make his selection accordingly, and so with regard to any branch of trade which is localized in certain geographical areas, while it will be equally advantageous to the advertiser who wishes to confine his attention to any one province or section of a province, as well as to any one class of people.

The statistics, as given in the first edition, have been brought down to the latest date, both in the gazetteers of the provinces, and other portions of the work.

In conclusion, we have to acknowledge the generous support given by the patrons of the Canadian Newspaper Directory, both in the first and present editions, and it is a pleasure to be able to say that many newspaper proprietors, who before our first edition doubted the expediency of a purely Canadian Newspaper Directory, and questioned its chances of success, have since shown their belief in the value of the work, and their confidence that the present publishers are able to give them the most reliable reference book that can be compiled. This confidence will be an inspiration to us to maintain the high character which has been accorded to the work by both publishers and public.

DUTY OF THE PRESS.

(From a lecture before Victoria University by J. S. Willison.)

It is, however, not too much to say that the press is still on trial, and that if it fail to show capacity for self-discipline and self-regulation there must arise a movement for regulation by public authority. In truth, in the New York State Legislature there has just been introduced a statute for the regulation of the cartoon, and there is a rising public revolt against two or three of the great New York journals; against their news methods, however, rather than against their editorial utterances or general public policy. There can be no doubt that a newspaper despotism is one of the most insolent and brutal of all despotisms. The journalist who hunts a private citizen under the influence of a mere personal malice is as pitiful a creature as a bully who flogs a child. But one doubts if this tyranny can safely be suppressed by public authority. The remedy will probably be found in public opinion rather than in public regulation. The press with all its faults has been the very voice of progress, and under its protecting arm liberty has been sheltered from many a storm and civilization steadied for many a triumphal advance. If now and then journalism develops a ruffian or a tyrant it is in the power of public opinion to put him down, and it is not necessary in the process to cripple or destroy one of the best and most beneficient of the agencies of civilization. Any legislation that could be enacted to restrain the license or moderate the brutality of the press would be as likely to be used to check exposure of abuses and to prevent the uncovering of conspiracies against the common-wealth as for the protection of the private citizen against the malice and venom of guerilla journalists. As I have said, the dogma of editorial infallibility is a relic of a more credulous age. It must become more and more the habit of the press to reason, rather than to dogmatize, to present all phases of a question to the people, to stimulate independent research and hard free thinking, to develop more original voices in order that we may have fewer feeble vapid echoes throughout the community. There is nothing more damaging to real independence of thought and utterance than the ancient tradition that a public journal must declare a positive and irrevocable opinion upon every political, commercial, social and scientific question that arises for discussion, and that the first word of an impulsive editor must be the last word of an enlightened community. It should be the business of the press to steady rather than to inflame public opinion, and even at the risk of darling popularity, which may, perhaps, count heavily in the advertising department, refuse to run at the heels of every momentary clamour and make revenue out of the passions and prejudices of a community. The great fault of the Canadian press has been, that, it was political rather than national, and one of the most hopeful signs for Canada at this hour is that in the main it tends to become national rather than political. Irrational devotion to party can hardly be consistent with rational devotion to country.

THE BUSINESS

OF THE MODERN

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING AGENCY.

ITS UTILITY TO BOTH THE ADVERTISER AND THE PUBLISHER.

First and foremost and all the time it is the business of an advertising agency to promote and facilitate newspaper advertising.

To be of valuable service to the advertiser an agency must have first, a high standing with the publishers, a reputation for honesty and integrity, the name of living up to its promises and of paying its accounts promptly.

It must possess the experience of years in dealing with the newspapers of the country, must know the rock bottom rates and the circulation, as nearly as may be, of every publication, must be informed concerning its growing or declining popularity, the character of its readers, the territory it covers, its political complexion, the peculiarity of its make up, method of doing business, etc., etc. Special knowledge on all these points is absolutely necessary in order to intelligently determine the fitness of a publication for the advertising of a particular article.

The modern advertising agency must have a complete and thorough organization in which all the departments work harmoniously toward the common end of rendering a prompt and efficient service to the advertiser. It must employ specialists to originate, write up and illustrate, bright, attractive advertisements for every line of business.

It must be in touch with the best printers, artists, engravers, electrotypers, etc., in order to secure for its clients the best possible work and turn it out promptly.

It must have a complete, up-to-date method of sending out instruction orders and changes of copy to the newspapers, a perfect system of checking and looking after every insertion of every advertisement in every paper during the life of each contract and a clear and comprehensive method of rendering accounts to the advertiser and furnishing him with vouchers, duplicates of checking records, etc., to show that he has had every insertion for which he has been charged and that the advertising has been inserted in accordance with the contract.

The Agency and the Publisher.

A few publishers are in the habit of complaining that the ·n advertising agency works entirely in the interest of the .ser and against the interest of the publisher. If the best interests of the publisher consist in securing the highest possible price from the advertiser, without any regard to the actual value given, and in having the foreign advertisement stand for the whole year, without change, in the most obscure part of the paper, and in being paid for the full term no matter how many insertions have been missed, then it may be truly urged that the advertising agency interferes somewhat with these interests.

It may be reasonably affirmed however that the best interests of a newspaper consist in so dealing with every advertiser as to make his advertising profitable and thus secure the continuance of his business. It is just here that the agency comes in and not only develops and secures the advertising for the newspaper but helps the publisher to give good value for the money and then sees that he gets the money.

To begin at the beginning the advertising agent scents from afar the advent of a new article, the success of which depends on the way in which it is placed before the consumer; he interviews the manufacturer at once, and explains to him the advantages of newspaper advertising by which possible purchasers of his product, may be made aware of its peculiar qualities. As a rule a producer of an article, if he is not an experienced advertiser, knows as little about newspaper advertising as he does about liquified air and to him it is a quantity quite as uncertain.

It may take the advertising agent weeks, or even months to make the benefits of newspaper advertising sufficiently clear to the manufacturer to induce him to even consider an estimate. Without the advertising agency, he might go along for years before realizing the fact that he must use the columns of the newspapers before he can ever expect to have a very large sale for his article and then the difficulties of mapping out a plan of advertising, writing up the matter, and making the contracts with the newspapers, which he would have to select at random, would probably deter him from taking up the matter at all. Or, what is more likely, he would fall into the hands of the advertising fakirs, who would sell him "valuable (?) spaces" in special editions, "covering the whole civilized country", in maps, albums of celebrities, and schemes innumerable and then when his money was spent and the sale of his article had not increased he, thinking he had made a test of the value of advertising, would condemn advertising as a failure.

On the other hand however, the general advertising agency, working on the plan that the results of the advertising must show a profit to this advertiser in order that the business may be permanent, is likely to succeed in interesting him at the start by laying before him a well developed and comprehensive plan for covering the whole country or any particular district at a minimum of cost. The agency prepares a series of bright, attractive advertisements, illustrated or otherwise, places the contracts with the right newspapers, at the right prices, secures a good position in each paper and starts that advertiser upon his road to success.

In order to facilitate matters for the publisher, electrotypes or stereotypes are prepared and sent to him, thereby doing away with the expense of typesetting and the liability of mistakes in copy. Definite instructions are given in order that the advertisers' wishes may be carried out with the least possible trouble and at the end of every month or quarter the publisher gets a complete statement, showing in detail every dollar that is due him for the work of that term for each of the many advertisers in hand and one cheque to balance the account.

Mr. Anson McKim's Private Office.

This method of payment probably applies to only one agency in Canada and it is a well known fact that the majority of newspapers throughout the country, finding these statements always correct, depend upon them entirely and keep no other accounts, so far as A. McKim & Co's Agency is concerned. A point in this connection not fully appreciated by all publishers, is that many other agencies, even those who have a reputation for very prompt payment, pay only for what they are billed, if the amount is not higher than it should be, if items that should be included are left out, they pay the bill without rectifying the publishers error.

A. McKim & Co's method is to pay promptly for all advertising that has been properly inserted whether it has been billed for or not. Even when the advertiser fails to pay his account to this firm, the newspapers are paid just the same.

This agency is practically the pioneers of the Newspaper Advertising Agency business in Canada, at least, it was the first to be established upon a systematic basis and make it a success, securing the entire confidence of both advertisers and publishers throughout the Dominion.

Mr. Anson McKim came to Montreal in 1878 to open a local agency of the Toronto "Mail". This he conducted for ten years with remarkable success. During these ten years he assisted in developing the advertising idea among Montreal advertisers to such an extent that the opening of an Advertising Agency seemed an absolute necessity and in January 1899 the present firm started in the Advertising Agency business, with Mr. A. McKim as the sole proprietor.

Notwithstanding this change in relationship the publishers of the Toronto Mail desired him to retain the special agency of that paper, which has been continued to the present date.

The business has been a success from the start and its progress has been uniformly upward until the name of A. McKim & Co. is as familiar to the advertiser as that of his own special article and to the newspaper publisher as the heading of his paper.

Honest dealing and prompt payments have been the key notes of this agency from the first and there is probably not a business firm in the Dominion enjoying the confidence of its customers to a greater extent.

The Newspapers throughout the whole country, while they frequently complain of the low prices paid, are unanimous in their expression of confidence in the integrity of the firm and approval of the systematic way in which the whole business is conducted, especially of the prompt and satisfactory manner in which accounts are paid even though bills have not been rendered.

Accompanying this article are some photographic views showing the premises occupied by A. McKim & Co.

LIBEL LAW.

"The history of the law of libel, than which none is more interesting says John King, Q.C. in his "History of Newspaper Libel" furnishes abundant evidence of the educative influence exerted by the press itself. There is scarcely an amendment that cannot be traced to this source. It is seen in all of those legislative changes which we have been considering, and in a long line of leading cases which have settled the law as it is, and occasionaly suggested what should be. Reform has not always come when urged, or when most needed: it has hastened slowly; but enlightened public opinion has been steadily on its side, and it has never wanted a leader. There is a fact, known to very few, in the life and labors of an old Canadian journalist which the writer may be excused for mentioning. It should interest all who have sympathised with the early struggles for a free press in Canada. A few years ago, in the course of a newspaper controversy which arose in regard to the story of the Upper Canada Rebellion, and the personages who figured therein, the writer in looking through the papers of the late William Lyon Mackenzie, came upon a draft parliamentary bill "for more effectually securing the liberty of the press." It was in manuscript, in Mackenzie's plain, bold hand-writing, and displayed marks of frequent revision in order apparently to render its phraseology acceptable as a piece of parliamentary drafting. From the date which it bore—and subsequent inquiries verified the fact—the bill had been drawn years in advance of any agitation for those salutary provisions of Lord Campbell's Act, with a number of additional clauses that would have rendered that famous British act more effective, but it also contained the substance of other reforms which were afterward engrafted on the Canadian law of libel. The bill had not been laid before the legislature by reason, as far as we could discover, of the stirring events which drove its author into exile but there can be no doubt that, had a good, instead of an evil star shone upon his path, his libel bill would have been the precursor, in our old Upper Canada House of Assembly, of the great measure which, during his term of expatriation, was placed upon the statute books and became the law of England."

To Mr. Chas. Lindsay, author of "Life of William Lyon Mackensie" (who by the way was the owner of the draft referred to above) we are indebted for a fact equally worthy of note, but not yet recorded in any Canadian history. Mackenzie was chairman of a committee of the Upper Canada Legislature appointed to look into the banking regulations and suggest improvements in the existing banking system, and in that capacity drew up a report making ten chief recommendations, for the Reform of the Banking system. None of these recommendations were acted upon at the time but since then at different periods one after another of the reforms suggested have been carried out till all are now incorporated in the Canadian Banking Act except two.

CANADA AS A FIELD FOR UNITED STATES ADVERTISERS.

Statistics from an article by Hugh Graham, published in "Profitable Advertising" Dec. 1898.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, our tariff gave a preference of 12½ per cent., now 25 per cent., in favor of British goods; but despite the fact, the imports of American goods entered for actual consumption in Canada were $78,263,504, as compared with $58,574,024 in the fiscal year 1896, the last year of the old tariff; that is, the Canadian imports of American merchandise increased by $19,689,480, or, in other words, about $4 per capita of the population. In the same time, their imports from all countries, of goods entered for actual consumption in the country, increased by only $22,294,442, and their imports from Great Britain for this period show a falling off of $973,037 since July 1 last. The preference is 25 per cent., and this may cause a change in respect to British imports. It may be well to note, that $8,562,434 of the American increase was on dutiable goods.

A country's productive powers are a measure of its ability to buy and pay for goods of other nations. Canada bought more goods last year than formerly, but still comparing the same periods, she has shown an even larger increase in her productive powers. A high-water mark in exports was made in 1896, but those of 1898 exceed them by $38,461,918, the values for the respective periods being $121,013,852 and $152,485,770. Great Britain took $79,586,605 more of our products in 1898 than in 1896, and the United States $9,402,786 more. The United States Consul General in Montreal, Gen. John J. Bittinger, has sent to his government at Washington a report which should prove profitable reading to all merchants desirous of extending their trade in Canada. The Canadian trade and navigation returns for the present year will likewise bear study. In his report Mr. Bittinger takes ground in favor of reciprocity, pointing out that in order that Canadians should purchase more freely in the United States, they must be able to sell there also. He gives the following table of goods imported from Great Britain to Canada, the import of which in 1897 was less than in 1893, while the import of the same class of goods from the United States exceeds that of 1893.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO.

Ontario is the most populous and wealthy of all the provinces of Canada. It has a land area of 219,650 square miles and a water area of 2,350 sq. miles ; with a population at the census of 1891 of 2,114,321. The present population is estimated at two and half million souls. It has 42 counties besides several districts as large as some European states, out of which future counties will be formed. The province has 13 incorporated cities, 99 incorporated towns and about 2,500 villages. Its facilities for railway and water communication combined are not surpassed by any division of the American continent. The River St. Lawrence and the great lakes, Ontario, Erie, Huron, and Superior touch it on its entire southern and western boundaries, while from the " Height of land," which forms the back bone of the province, many fine rivers flow down to those lakes on the south, or to James Bay and Hudsons Bay on the north. No important county is unreached by a railway, and out of a total of 16,687 miles of railway in Canada 6,647 miles or about 40 per cent are in Ontario. In the extent and variety of its agricultural, dairy and fruit products Ontario leads the Dominion, while its wealth of gold, nickel and other valuable minerals is proving to be greater than was ever anticipated by geologists ten years ago. A census of the live stock of the province in 1897 showed 613,670 head of horses, 2,182,326 head of cattle, 1,690,350 head of sheep and 1,284,963 head of swine, while some items of the agricultural products in the same year were as follows: 28,856,152 bushels of wheat, 12,021,779 bushels of barley, 86,318,128 bushels of oats, 13,867,093 bushels of peas, 7,000,000 bushels of other grain, 16,100,797 bushels of potatoes, 68,297,148 bushels of turnips, and 3,811,518 tons of hay. It is noteworthy that the average yield per acre of crops in Ontario, though not so high as in Manitoba and the N.W.T., is greater than in any state in the American Union, the comparison holding good with all kinds of grain, and with all states, except one kind of grain in one state—Kansas which produces a higher average in oats. The production of cheese in 1897 was 164,220,699 lbs. and of butter 11,453,351 lbs. In 1897 Ontario had 5,669 public schools besides 340 Roman Catholic separate schools and 6 protestant separate schools, 105 kindergartens and 18 night schools, with 441,157 pupils in the public schools, 41,620 in the R. C. separate schools, 543 in the protestant separate schools, 10,693 in the Kindergartens, and 1,406 in the night schools. The number of public school teachers was 8,376. In higher education Ontario has a provincial normal school for the training of teachers, two other normal schools, two model schools, an art and industrial school, two technical schools, 37 collegiate institutes with 12,208 pupils, and 130 high schools with 24,390 pupils. It has also 103 public free libraries and 401 public subscription libraries. The province had in 1897, 3,198 post offices through which passed 65,500,000 letters, 16,750,000 post cards, 1,785,000 registered letters, 4,150,000 free letters, 14,825,000 transient newspapers, circulars, etc., and 653,724 money orders. Ontario is represented in the Dominion parliament by 24 senators and 92 members of the House of Commons. Its local government is carried on by a single chamber having 94 members. Capital, Toronto.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC.

The Province of Quebec, the cradle of civilization in Canada, has a history more abounding in romance and episode than that of any other division of the American continent. Its discovery dates from 1534, and its regular colonization from the beginning of the 17th century. From this colony went forth the hardy French pioneers, who penetrated through the wilds surrounding the Great Lakes, into the plains and prairies of the unknown West and North West, and down the valley of the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, and whose names still survive in many a town, lake and river, of Western Canada and the United States. The scenery of Quebec, along the St. Lawrence and Saguenay to Lake St. John and the regions beyond, and is year by year attracting visitors from all parts of the continent and from Europe. The wealth of Quebec in minerals is proving to be very great, the asbestos mines, among others, being now acknowledged to be the richest in the world. Quebec is penetrated in every part by rivers and streams, and the amount of water power still unutilized is inconceivable to those who have not explored the province. The facilities thus afforded for mill operations point out the province as a great future seat of manufacturing, especially in paper and pulp making, these water powers being interspersed among vast tracts of spruce, poplar, hemlock and other pulp woods, unequalled in the world for their qualities for pulp and paper making. By an Order in Council passed in 1896 the northern boundaries have been extended to the shores of Hudson Bay, the land area of Quebec being now 344,050 sq. miles, and the water area 3,300 sq. miles. The population at the last census in 1891, was 1,488,586, and is now estimated at 1,650,000. It has 66 counties, five districts, 8 cities, 101 towns, and over 1,500 villages. A dual system of education exists in the province, there being a board of Roman Catholic school commissioners and a board of Protestant school commissioners. The R. C. Montreal first began to be settled by Europeans in 1542; and exactly one century later the spot destined to be the city was consecrated with due solemities, commended to the "Queen of Angels," and called Ville-Marie, a name which it retained for a long period. In 1760 it was taken by the English. Early in the present century vessels of more than three hundred tons could not ascend to Montreal, and its foreign trade was carried on by small brigs and barges. In 1809 the first steam vessel, "The Accommodation," built by the Hon. John Molson, made a trip to Quebec. She had berths for twenty passengers. Years of industry and intelligence, enterprise and labor have produced a mighty contrast. Ocean steamers of 4,000 to 10,000 tons and ships from 700 to 2,000, from all parts of the world, now lie alongside of the wharves in the harbor, which are not equalled in Canada in point of extent, accommodation, approach and cleanliness. Montreal was formerly the capital of Canada, but in April, 1849, a political mob burned the Parliament Buildings and the seat of government was in consequence removed to Quebec, subsequently to Toronto and finally to Ottawa. In July, 1852, a destructive fire laid waste a large part of the city, burning 1,108 houses and destroying property valued at $1,363,264. Montreal is noted for its charitable and religious institutions, some of which were founded nearly 250 years ago. The oldest church in the city is the Bonsecours (Roman Catholic), it was erected in 1658; was burnt in 1764, but rebuilt in 1771. The city is abundantly supplied with pure water, and is lighted by electricity and gas. The principal buildings are the City Hall, Court House, Post Office, Custom House, Board of Trade, Seminary of St. Sulpice, Convent of Notre Dame, General Hospital, Royal Victoria Hospital, Grey Nunnery, Montreal College, McGill University Buildings, Laval University, Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Colleges, Young Men's Christian Association building, St. Mary's College, Montreal Diocesan College, Academy of Music, Queen's Hall, Theatre Royal, Her Majesty's Theatre, Theatre Francais, Victoria Skating Rink, Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Mechanics' Hall, etc. It has thirteen markets, including Bonsecours, a magnificent building with a lofty dome, fronting on the River. It has eighty churches and five synagogues. Its parks and squares are numerous, the chief being Mount Royal Park, covering 430 acres, and affording from the "Look out" one of the finest urban views of the continent. Montreal is the head of ocean navigation on the St. Lawrence, and its shipping trade is the largest of any city in Canada, the annual exports amounting to about $30,000,000 and the imports about $45,000,000. It is the head port of eight steamship companies, one of which (the Allan line) is among the largest in the world. Over 6,000 vessels arrive annually during the season of navigation. Its granite docks extend seven or eight miles up and down the river. Montreal has about two-thirds of the banking capital of Canada, no less than eight of its chartered banks having their head offices here. The Victoria Bridge across the River St. Lawrence at Montreal, was the largest tubular bridge in the world, being 9,184 feet in length. It contains 24 spans of 242 feet each and one (the centre 60 feet above the river) of 330 feet, and it cost nearly $7,000,000. This bridge has now been replaced by a double track steel bridge laid on the old piers. The educational means of the city comprise a university (McGill) with faculties of law, arts, science, medicine, and veterinary science, and theological colleges connected with the Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Church of England, and Roman Catholic churches; a high school, two normal schools, and a number of private and public schools and several classical and scientific academies, also a medical QUEBEC, pop. 73,446, Co. Quebec, is situated on the left bank of the * River St. Lawrence at Point des Monts, 180 miles N.E. of Montreal, and 328 miles N.W. of Portland, Me., lat. (of N.E. bastion) 46° 49′ 6″, long. 71° 13′ 45″ W. Chief Industries : ship building, manufacture of iron castings, machinery, cutlery, nails, cartridges and shells, leather, paper, church ornaments, boots and shoes, rope, tobacco and cigars, steel, etc. Chief Shipments : timber is shipped by millions of feet to all parts of the world, potatoes, cabbages and turnips form a large portion of its exports, while all classes of merchandize is shipped to every civilized country. Levis immediately opposite is connected by a ferry and a great many of the business men and clerks of Quebec reside there. Quebec is the capital of the Province of Quebec, and is the third most populous city in Canada. In the grandeur of its site and surroundings, in the strength of its fortifications, in the extent and romance of its history, and the hospitality and kindness of its citizens, Quebec stands supreme among the cities of America. The city has a remarkably picturesque situation between the two rivers at the north-eastern extremity of a narrow but elevated tableland, which for about eight miles forms the left bank of the River St. Lawrence. Cape Diamond, the extremity of the tableland, is 333 feet above the level of the river, to which it presents a nearly precipitous face ; the descent to the St. Charles River is more gradual. The distance from one river to the other is little more than a mile. Opposite Cape Diamond the St. Lawrence is contracted to a breadth of 1,314 yards ; but immediately below, at the confluence of the St. Charles, it spreads out into a broad and beautiful basin, more than 2,500 yards wide, forming a capacious and excellent harbor. The Spring tides rise and fall 18 feet. Quebec is divided into two parts called Upper and Lower Towns. The Upper Town occupies the highest part of the promontory, a small part of it is surrounded with walls, and otherwise fortified. The ancient citadel, which crowns the summit of Cape Diamond, covers, with its numerous works, an area of 40 acres, and from its position is the strongest natural fortress in America. The Lower Town, which is the seat of commerce, is built around the base of Cape Diamond, where, in many places, the rock has been cut away to make room for the houses. The banks of both rivers are lined with warehouses and wharves, the latter jutting about 200 feet into the stream, and along them the water is sufficiently deep to admit vessels of the largest size. The city has several times suffered from disastrous fires, but the result has been the erection of more attractive buildings and a consequent improvement in the general appearance of the city- In the Upper Town are several squares and public walks commanding views unrivalled for their varied and picturesque appearance. In one stands a substantial monument, erected to the joint memory of Generals Wolfe and Montcalm, the English and French commanders who fell in the taking of Quebec in 1759. It is 65 feet high. A monument 40 feet high marks the spot where General Wolfe fell on the Plains of Abraham ; while on St. Foy Road stands a monument presented by Prince Napoleon Bonaparte in 1855, commemorating a fierce struggle which took place here in 1760 between the British and French troops. Among the public buildings of Quebec may be mentioned the new Parliament Buildings ; the Roman Catholic Cathedral, with a seating capacity of 4,000 persons, and covering with the university attached an area of eight acres ; the English Cathedral, surmounted by a lofty spire, both occupying elevated positions in the Upper Town. There are twenty-three churches in Quebec and one synagogue. The educational institutions comprise three Roman Catholic Colleges, viz : Laval University, with faculties of arts, law and medicine ; the Grand Seminary and the Minor Seminary ; the Ursuline Convent, an extensive establishment founded in 1641 ; several nunneries ; Morrin College, with seven professors ; Laval, Normal and Model schools ; Girls' High school ; the Quebec High school, and a number of private academies and public schools. There are in addition, a Canadian Institute, provided with a library and reading room ; the Literary and Historical Society, the oldest chartered institution of its kind in Canada, having been founded in 1824, and possessing valuable "Records of the Realm" in eighty or ninety folios, and a large collection of historical manuscripts ; but nearly the whole of its museum and a great part of its library were destroyed by fire, with the Parliament buildings, in 1854 ; the Entomological Society, St. Patrick's Literary Institute, Advocates' Library, Board of Trade, Merchants' Exchange and the Y.M.C.A. rooms. The principal benevolent institutions are the Marine Hospital, the Hotel Dieu, the (Jeffery Hale) General Hospital, and the Lunatic Asylum at Beauport. Surrounding towns and villages where no papers are pub-

WHAT AN ADVERTISEMENT SHOULD DO :

1st. It must attract attention.

2nd. It must be put up in a shape to be easily and quickly read.

3rd. It must tell why the article is worth buying, in language that will carry conviction.

There is one argument for the cause of honesty in advertising which has never been and never will be successfully refuted. It is universally conceded that if a merchant is in business to stay he will find it an absolute necessity to secure the confidence of the public. That this cannot be done by dishonest methods is a self-evident truth. Profitable Advertising.

PROVINCE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

New Brunswick, the largest of the three maritime provinces, has a land area of 28,100 square miles, and an internal water area of 100 square miles. The population at the census of 1891 was 321,294 and the estimated population at the present time is about 350,000. The province is endowed with a remarkable wealth of timber lands and an extent of rich farming land also far larger than is generally supposed. These lands will be opened up for cultivation as the forests are cleared, when New Brunswick will be recognized not only as a great agricultural and stock raising country, but as Nova Scotia is now, will be rich in fruit and garden products. The pulp industry is beginning to be developed, the province having a large area of fine pulp wood. The province is intersected in a remarkable way by beautiful rivers, nearly all of which are stocked with fish. Some of the salmon rivers of New Brunswick are the most celebrated in the world. The River St. John—noted among other New Brunswick rivers for its picturesque scenery—is 500 miles long, is navigable for large steamers to Fredericton, 90 miles, and for small steamers to Grand Falls, 230 miles. Other noble rivers of the province are the Miramichi, the Nipiseguit, the Richibucto and the Ste. Croix. Coal, gold, galena, manganese, antimony and other mineral deposits exist in the province, together with a remarkable mineral called albertite—a jet-black, glossy substance—the true character of which was a matter of dispute among geologists, though it is now regarded as pure petroleum, and is of great commercial value. To give an idea of the extent of the lumber industry of the province, the mills of the St. John River alone produce over 160,000,000 ft. annually, not including laths, pickets, shingles, staves, etc. The fisheries of the province are extensive, employing over 11,000 men and over 5,500 vessels and fishing boats. The total value of the fish caught by these fishermen in 1897 was $4,799,433, the exports of fish being $757,207. The total tonnage of vessels engaged in the coasting trade of New Brunswick in 1897 was 1,301,667 tons. The canning of lobsters and sardines is now a special feature of this industry. New Brunswick has three cities, five towns and 750 villages and hamlets. It has two universities and a number of academies, normal and high schools. There were 1,737 public schools in the province in 1897, with 1,820 teachers and assistants and 61,988 pupils. The grammar schools have 82 teachers and 732 pupils, and the normal schools 257 pupils. The total number of post offices in the province in 1897 was 1,183, through which passed 6,250,000 letters, 1,145,000 post cards, 149,000 registered letters, 206,000 free letters, 765,000 transient newspapers (not including papers mailed from newspaper offices), circulars, etc., 17,000 parcels and 68,203 money orders. In the Dominion parliament New Brunswick is represented by 10 senators and 14 members of the House of Commons. Its provincial legislature has now a single house, the Legislative Assembly, consisting of 46 members. Capital, Fredericton.

For information as to the newspapers of the province see other parts of this work.

Its entrance—two miles south of the city—is protected by islands, on which are quarantine hospital and a lighthouse. The ordinary rise of tide is 21 feet at low water. Its admirable position at the mouth of one of the largest rivers in America, with a harbor open during the entire year, and regular steamboat connections with all parts of the province and the northern portion of the United States, and with a system of railroads running in all directions, with extensive maritime and manufacturing interests, insure its becoming a city of great commercial wealth and importance. The only way to win in advertising is to get into it with all your heart, determined to get results, and then leave no stone unturned to discover along what lines advertising will bring the greatest returns at the smallest cost.

An ad must look for the reader. Readers never look for an ad.

People remember your goods because you force them to. Stop forcing and they'll stop remembering.

Be patient. Don't expect a mad rush on the part of the public the moment you spring your first advertisement upon them. If you want a good crop you must sow good seed and plenty of it. One grain of corn won't produce it.

PROVINCE OF NOVA SCOTIA.

The Province of Nova Scotia—called in its early days Acadia, and embracing under that term the territory of the present Province of New Brunswick—is bounded on the north and west by the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Straits of Northumberland and Bay of Fundy, and on the east and south by the Atlantic Ocean. Only a narrow neck of land separates the waters of the Bay of Fundy from the Straits of Northumberland. Standing out in the Atlantic, and commanding, in a commercial sense, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the province is destined to be the great maritime force of the American continent. Each and every county in the whole province reaches the sea, and possesses one or more harbors ; and the position of the province in this respect is unique in the geography of the world. The land area of Nova Scotia is 20,550 square miles, the internal water area 50 square miles, and the population in 1891 was 450,523. It has 18 counties, 3 cities, 14 towns and about 850 villages. The future maritime pre-eminence of Nova Scotia is not only indicated by its position on the sea, and by the natural tendencies of the population, but by the immense beds of excellent coal and iron found side by side in the same counties, and eminently suited for ship building purposes. The output of Nova Scotia coal increased from 1,373,666 long tons in 1886 to over 2,280,000 in 1898, and the demand for it in Quebec and other provinces has been greater during the past year than ever before. During 1898 the quantity of gold mined in the province amounted to 31,104 oz. This exceeded the output of any previous year. the product of the iron mines is also large ; while the province is rich in gypsum, copper and other mines as yet but partially developed. Among other products of the field, Nova Scotia has of late years become famous for her apples, which are in great demand in England for their exceptionally fine flavor. In the last few years the production of apples has ranged from 200,000 barrels to 400,000 barrels, and new areas are each year being planted. Im 1898 Nova Scotia had 2,385 schools with 101,203 pupils. The province has five Universities, a Provincial Normal school, an Academy for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind—the first in any British Colony—a school of Horticulture, and 18 county academies besides high schools. In the year 1897 there passed through the 1,657 post offices of Nova Scotia 9,100,000 letters, 1,725,000 post cards, 237,000 registered letters and 775,000 transient newspapers, periodicals, books, etc. Nova Scotia sends to the House of Commons 20 members, and to the Upper House 10 senators ; its local legislature has 38 members in the Assembly and 21 in the Legislative Council. Capital, Halifax.

For statistics and other information regarding the newspapers of the province see other parts of this work.

PROVINCE of PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

Though the smallest in area—having a land surface of only 2,000 square miles—Prince Edward Island is the most thickly settled and one of the most productive of the provinces of Canada. It had at the last census of 1891 54.5 persons to the square mile, while Nova Scotia, the next province in density of population, had at the same census only 21.8 per square mile. The population of the island at the census of 1891 was 109,078, the estimated population at the present time being about 120,000. There is scarcely a foot of land in Prince Edward Island not capable of cultivation and the soil is uniformly rich. This natural advantage, coupled with the endowment of a temperate climate and regular rain falls, has made the province famous as an agricultural and stock raising country. The Island horses, cattle and sheep not only command a ready sale in the other provinces of Canada, but are in continually increasing demand in the United States where they are highly prized for their sound health and fine qualities. One writer calls it the Arabia of America in respect of its splendid horses, and another speaks of it as the Ireland of Canada in praise of its cattle and dairy products. Among other agricultural products, the Island oats and potatoes are famous throughout America and the West Indies for their excellence, the foreign demand for these products being steadily on the increase. The hay crops are also celebrated, being produced from indigenous clover and grasses, and it is to the high quality of these crops that the superiority of the island live stock is largely due. The fishing interests of the Island are also important, its position in the Gulf giving it great advantages for the future development of its marine resources. The value of the fish taken by P. E. I. fishermen in 1897 was $976,125, of which $494,281 was exported to foreign countries. The total tonnage of vessels engaged in the coasting trade of the Island in 1897 was 1,209,602, being nearly as large as that of New Brunswick. The principal fish caught are mackerel, herring, cod, hake, lobsters and oysters. The annual take of lobsters is about 22,000,000 in number, and of oysters about 26,000 barrels, the P. E. I. oysters—especially those of Malpeque Bay—being esteemed the finest in flavor of any on the Atlantic coast. The park like scenery of the Island, and its even temperature and charming summer weather are year by year attracting tourists and health seekers to the province from all parts of the continent. Prince Edward Island had in 1897 467 public schools with 332 male teachers and 247 female teachers and a total of 21,845 pupils. In the same year it had 406 post offices through which passed 1,330,000 letters, 190,000 post cards, 36,500 registered letters, 34,500 free letters, 185,000 transient newspapers, circulars, etc., 2,850 parcels, and 9,431 money orders, besides papers from offices of publication. Prince Edward Island is represented in the Dominion Parliament by four senators, and five members of the House of Commons. Its local government is carried on by a single house, the Legislative Assembly, having 29 members. Capital, Charlottetown.

For information regarding the newspapers of the province see other parts of this work.

A plunger in advertising stands about te same chance of coming to grief as does the plunger on the race-track, and the indisputable truth that there are a few who have succeeded by this method is the exception that proves the rule. Advertising is as sure to pay as the sun is sure to rise, but it must be the right amount of the right kind in the right place.

PROVINCE OF MANITOBA.

Manitoba, popularly known as the prairie province, has a land area of 64,066 sq. m., and a water area of 9,890 sq. m. It is celebrated for its rich agricultural land, and is especially noted as a grain raising province. Twenty-five years ago almost the only products of the province were furs, but its prairie lands, over which the buffalo roamed but a few years ago, are being rapidly settled by immigrants from the older provinces and from Europe. When Manitoba became a province of the Dominion in 1870, the total population was only 11,963, of whom 10,400 were half breeds and Indians. The census of 1891 showed a population of 152,506, and the present population is estimated at over 300,000. In 1882 the province had 65 miles of railway, and at the end of 1898 this was increased to 1,755 miles. The total acreage devoted to cereals in 1897 was 1,958,025, being an increase of about 15 per cent. over the previous year. In 1897 there were 18,261,950 bushels of wheat raised ; 10,629,513 bushels of oats ; 3,183,602 bushels of barley, besides other grain and root crops, while the live stock in the same year was estimated as follows ; head of horses, 100,274; cattle, 221,775 ; sheep, 36,680 ; swine, 74,944. During the past few years dairying and stock raising have developed very rapidly. The minerals of the province have not been developed, as yet, but large deposits of salt and petroleum are known to exist near Lake Winnipegoosis, while rich beds of iron ore underlie the country around Lake Winnipeg. The number of public schools in the province in 1897 was 1,068, having 1,197 teachers, and 39,841 pupils. There are also collegiate institutes at Winnipeg, Portage La Prairie and Brandon, having on the rolls a total of 818 pupils. At Winnipeg there is a Normal School for the training of teachers, having 101 pupils at the short session and 143 at the long session. In 1897 there were in Manitoba and the North-West Territories 790 Post Offices, through which passed 9,950,000 letters, 1,075,000 post cards, 295,000 registered letters, 232,000 free letters, 1,405,000 transient newspapers, circulars, etc., and 66,866 money orders. Manitoba is represented in the Dominion House of Commons by 7 members, and in the Senate by 4 senators. The local government is carried on by a single Legislative Assembly, having 40 members. Capital Winnipeg.

For information regarding the newspapers of the province see other parts of this work.

The electoral Divisions of the local legislature are given as counties, they taking the same place as the counties in the older Provinces.

NORTH WEST TERRITORIES.

The four organized territories of the Canadian North-West have an area of over 500,000 square miles, divided as follows ; Assiniboia, land area, 89,340 sq. m., water area 1,000 sq. m.; Saskatchewan, land area 108,000 sq. m., water area 6,000 sq. m.; Alberta, 99,255 sq. m.; water area 745 sq. m.; the Yukon, 196,300 sq. m., water area 2,000 sq. m. This is exclusive of the Mackenzie Basin, Ungava, Franklin and Keewatin, territories of large extent, but almost unexplored and undevelopped. It was only in 1886, that the little known region lying between Manitoba and B.C. was marked off into districts with a provisional government corresponding to the Crown colonies of Gt. Britian, but it is only the matter of a short time when these districts will become provinces of the Dominion. The Act creating these districts gave the Dominion government the essential attributes of sovereignty, not only over these territories, but over the entire domain of British North America, so large a part of which is still waiting exploration and settlement. A census of Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, taken in 1885, gave the total population of these districts as 48,362, of whom 20,170 were Indians, the district of Athabasca being almost wholly inhabited by Indians. The census of 1891, showed the population of the territories to be 98,967, and if the rate of increase is continued for the present decade, the population will be over 175,000 at the next census. Within the last few years these territories have become celebrated for their wonderful productiveness in grain and stock-raising, the winter climate having proved much milder than those accustomed to corresponding latitudes in the East would imagine, owing to the influence of the Chinook winds and other causes. The mineral wealth of the Territories in coal, gold, natural asphaltum, petroleum, etc., has already been proved to be immense, and it only requires railway communication to open up these vast resources. In 1885 there were 59 organized school districts in the territories, but in 1897 they possessed 386 public schools, and 8 separate schools, the former having 455 teachers, and the latter 15. The total number of pupils was 14,576. The postal statistics of the Territories are included in the official returns for Manitoba. The North-West Territories return 2 senators to the Dominion House and 4 members to the House of Commons. For all the territories together except the Yukon, there is a Legislative Assembly, consisting of 29 members, which with an Advisory Council forms the local government. The Yukon district, the great mineral wealth of which has become the sensation of the world, is administered by a special commissioner and staff, appointed by the Dominion Government. The capital of the North-West Territories is Regina, and of the Yukon district, Dawson City.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

British Columbia, the largest of all the provinces of the Canadian Confederation, has a land area of 382,300 sq. miles, and a water area of 1,000 sq. m., being more than the combined areas of France, Italy, Belgium and Holland. All the great natural features of the other provinces are here reproduced on a magnified scale, the great prairies of the North-West alone excepted. It has a greater variety of climate than all the other provinces, for while the upper slopes of the Rockies are as cold as Labrador, the southern coast is so warm that oranges have been ripened in the open air. Its wonderful coast line of thousands of miles, embracing hundreds of harbors; its unrivalled fisheries; its stupendous forests, many trees of which measure from 8 to 10 feet in diameter; its incalculable wealth in those minerals which are the most valued by, and most necessary to, man, and its peculiar geographical position on the Pacific Coast, all mark out the province as one of the imperial realms of the future. The wealth of British Columbia in minerals can as yet scarcely be calculated, for tracts of country thousands of sq. miles in extent, are as yet untraversed by the prospector, and many regions known to be rich in minerals can not yet be reached by railways. Among the minerals mined or exported to a greater or less extent are gold, silver, coal, iron, copper, galena, mercury, cinnibar, platinum, antimony, bismuth, molybdenum, plumbago, salt and mica, while many other minerals are known to exist. The coal of the province ranges from common lignite to anthracite, and most of it is admirably suited for steam purposes. The steamshipping trade of the whole American coast of the Pacific is now looking to British Columbia for its coal supplies. Within the past year the vast coal beds of the Crow's Nest Pass have been tapped and have been proved to be excellent steam coal. For the 12 years preceeding 1874, the exports of coal from British Columbia averaged 12,500 tons per year, but they have developed since then till in 1897 the exports were 679,751 tons, the total production of the same year being 988,796 tons. The coal bearing areas so far explored are 65,000 sq. m. in extent, the quantity underlying portions of this area being estimated at four and a half to nine million tons per sq. m. Gold is found in greater or less quantity all over the province, but the mines of the Kootenay and Cariboo districts are becoming prominent as quartz mining regions, while the Cassiar and Atlin Lake regions are now being exploited for placer mines. The gold produced in British Columbia in 1894 amounted to $530,530.00, while since the development of quartz mining, the production has gone on at such rapid rate that in 1897 the amount produced was $2,724,657.00 and this last amount will probably be doubled in 1899. The population of British Columbia in 1881 was 49,459, but in 1891 it had increased to 92,767, and at the present time it is estimated at about 200,000. In 1897 there were 213 schools in the province with 223 teachers, and 6,332 pupils, besides these there were 27 graded schools, with 149 teachers and 9,005 pupils. There were also 4 high schools, with 12 teachers and 461 pupils. British Columbia has 293 post offices, through which passed in 1897 4,850,000 letters, 505,000 post cards, 142,000 registered letters, 148,500 free letters, 460,000 transient newspapers, circulars, etc., and 77,991 money orders. The province is represented in the Dominion Parliament by 3 senators, and 6 members of the House of Commons. The local government is carried on by a single chamber, the Legislative Assembly having 33 members. Capital, Victoria.

For information regarding the newspapers of the province see other parts of this work.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

Newfoundland, the oldest colony in the British Empire, embraces the Island of Newfoundland and a portion of the Labrador coast of the mainland, and is the only part of British North America not as yet included in the Dominion of Canada, though proposals for confederation have at various times been made, and will no doubt be consummated after the French shore difficulty is settled. The area of the island is estimated at 40,200 sq. m. and the Labrador coast at 120,000 sq. m. The population at the census of 1891 was 202,040, including Labrador. From its settlement in 1614 to a very recent time the fisheries have formed practically the only industry of the inhabitants, but the building of railways, and the exploration of the interior, is leading to the discovery and development of hitherto unknown resources that will give a steadiness and balance heretofore lacking in the commerce of the island. In the whole island less than 100,000 acres are now under cultivation, but there are are considerable tracts of land fit for hardy cereals, and northern fruits such as apples, and efforts are now being made to bring these lands under tillage. In minerals the island has copper, coal, iron, gypsum, sulphur, graphite, lead and asbestos. The chrome iron mines of the colony, recently opened out by means of the railway are of high grade, and the ore is meeting with a great demand in the United States, Canada and Europe. In 1896 iron pyrites to the amount of 36,496 tons were exported, and copper ore to the amount of 64,672 tons, valued at $483,814.00 were exported in the same year. Out of a total value of $6,638,187.00 of exports in 1896 $5,649,766.00 were of fish and fish products. In 1895 there were 2,339 vessels on the shipping register of the colony, with a total tonnage of 108, 180 tons and of the whole population no less than 53,502 persons were engaged in fishing. The total attendance at the colleges, academies and schols, in 1896 was 34,557. There are 846 post offices in the colony, but statistics of this department are not available. The government is carried on by a Legislative Council, consisting of 15 members and a Legislative Assembly of 36 members. Capital, St. John's.

THE BUSINESS OF ADVERTISING.

Written for the Canadian Newspaper Directory, by Mr. J. P. McConnell. The writer of this article knows whereof he speaks. He has been the advertising manager of the "Slater Shoes," and is now in charge of the advertising department of The Kennedy Co., Ltd., manufacturers of "Semi-ready" Clothing.

This is not written to convince the reader of the value of advertising but for the purpose of being of some possible assistance to those who already believe in advertising as a good business proposition.

Before beginning to advertise it is necessary to first know what you are to advertise. I am not one of those who believe that anything may be boomed into profitable popularity by advertising. It must have merit, and superior merit at that, especially if it is to compete with other advertised articles.

The advertiser should be able to gauge the field for his article. If it is something in every day use so much the better. If it is something forming part of the great popular necessities of life, with distinctive features of its own, then it will probably be a bonanza if properly placed on the market and efficiently advertised.

Of course it must not be forgotten that many new things have been introduced and a demand created for them by advertising—things which the public never knew they wanted till they heard of them through advertising. Likewise the trade in lines which have been on the market for years, and familiar to thousands of consumers has been rejuvenated and doubled, trebled or quadrupled by an agressive policy of advertising.

Having decided what is to be advertised and a definite plan for marketing the goods decided upon, the next consideration is the preparation of the copy for the advertisements. It is often right on the threshold that the advertiser makes the mistake which marks his ultimate failure.

Good copy is a prime requisite. Not smart sayings, or even expert ad writers' stuff will sell goods unless the ad gives good and sufficient reasons for the public using them. For this reason I believe that a good salesman would write better ads than nine out of ten of the so called ad experts, if he would write as he talks when selling the goods. The expert's services may be valuable in condensing and putting into attractive shape what is said, but mere words never did and never will make a success of any business. Reasons, information, descriptions and prices are absolutely essential for ads which are intended to sell.

It is surprising how people want to buy. But before they buy they want to know something about the goods; want to know why Jones' stoves are better than Smiths; want to know how much they will cost, in fact they are just as inquisitive outside the store as they are in it. The man who can write information that anticipates all possible kinds of questions is a good ad writer.

Literary style is only a secondary consideration, and nothing but plain statements of facts expressed in such a way that they carry conviction of their truthfulness should be the only style tolerated in advertising matter. Originality and arguments attractively put are nevertheless desirable if the business of the ad is not forgotten.

The expert usually has a better knowledge of setting, illustration, media, etc., and the advertiser on a large scale really needs his services. But the advertiser should keep a watchful eye on all the advertisements. One of the most successful business men I know, who manufactures a large quantity of a certain advertised line of goods, cannot write a line of advertising, but he is the most accurate judge of a good ad I ever met simply because he never loses sight of the consumer and always judges the possible effect of the ad on the reader not by its smartness or "style" but by the force of its reasoning, and this should be the point of view from which the advertiser should watch the expert's work.

The setting of the ad is next in importance. No single style can be recommended, but it is safe to say neatness and dignified plainness should mark the setting of ads. Borders may sometimes be used with good effect but I prefer a border of white space on most ads. Not more than three faces of types should be used in any ad. The illustration is also important. In most cases an original drawing that illustrates either the article, some particular feature or some argument in favor of it should be used. For this reason the really effective illustration will most likely have to be an original one. Avoid stock cuts or illustrations from "syndicates." Not one in ten of these will ever be found available. Above all don't attempt to write an ad to fit the cut. Such ads usually sound hollow and strained. It pays to go to the extra expense of original cuts especially if you are using any number of papers. For ordinary newspaper work the line drawing will be found the most effective.

Select your engraver. Watch his work too, give him time enough to etch his plates so you won't find lines missing in the printed ad.

It will generally be found advisable to have a printer set up the ad, and afterwards have it electrotyped. From the electros any number of stereos may be made but care should be taken to preserve the original electros for future use.

Before all this has been done the prudent advertiser will have looked up a reliable advertising agency and secured rates, circulation, etc., with an estimate of the cost of a campaign.

The media to be selected will of course be newspapers. No other form of publicity is so effective or economical. After the first few ads have appeared in the newspapers there will be a steady stream of solicitors for all kinds of schemes. My experience is that not one in a hundred of these schemes is worth investigating. In fact, many of them are downright swindles of a very brazen kind. The best way to floor a "scheme" is to select a newspaper of known circulation and rates, figure what you can get in it for the money you are asked to put into the "scheme." It will be an eye-opener to you. For instance: A plausible gentleman presented to me a proposition to take space in a monthly. The circulation was claimed to be 1,000, with a possibility of half that, but for the sake of argument we'll allow it what it claimed which means that if the statement of circulation were true that my ad would reach in the course of a year 12,000 readers, most of which would of course be duplicated. The price asked ($50.) looked cheap enough, but here is how cheap it really is when figured out. With $50. I can go to either one of two dailies in Montreal with a known circulation of over 50,000 and buy say 1,000 lines, more than equal to three full columns. So with this one insertion I could reach more than twice (probably four times) as many people, in a ten times more impressive way. Or I could divide the 1,000 lines in four equal instalments and reach over 200,000 people, and use approximately the same sized space as the page in the monthly. By using these four ads in one week I would cover nine or ten times the ground and results would be immediate if at all, while in the monthly I would have to wait a year for all the ads to get to work. Reasoned on this basis, I don't believe one scheme in a thousand will stand. The same will apply in buying regular newspaper space though it is the experience of all advertisers that the higher the circulation of a paper the cheaper it is in proportion to the service given. The papers of smaller circulation must charge more in proportion as the cost of publication is higher per thousand in the ratio of difference between their circulation and that of papers with bigger lists. Most anything, including newspapers, can be manufactured more cheaply on a large scale than on a small one.

The possibilities which may suggest themselves to a new advertiser from the above comparisons are not to be over-estimated in placing advertising. There are pitfalls which beset the beginner and which if not carefully watched and thoroughly understood will result in squandering an appropriation with no perceptible results. The question therefore of placing the advertising becomes a serious one. I believe the easiest, most economical and thoroughly satisfactory plan is through a reputable and established advertising agency.

If the advertiser has had twenty or more years experience in buying newspaper space he will find he has not been a day longer at the business than he needs. If he understands all the intricacies of rate cards, of position, discounts and the peculiar regulations, no two offices being alike, he is partly qualified to place his own business.

If he can secure the rates, command the influence and obtain advantages which only the man who places big business continually can, then he has another qualification.

If the advertiser has a staff of assistants trained to check his ads, to give instructions and see that they are carried out; if his business is large enough to warrant this kind of a service, he still lacks a good reason for placing his business direct because he can get all this service with the lowest rates for space, for nothing.

If however he lacks any of the above facilities he has good reasons for placing his business through a reliable agency.

On the question of rates I am tolerably certain that no advertiser gets lower rates than is given the best advertising agencies, in fact, I am conversant with cases where the direct advertiser has paid double what the agency does for his clients simply because he lacked information which only the agent was in a position to know. In this country, at least, the newspapers recognize the business brought to them by agencies as worth paying for, and allow an agent's commission, as by right they ought. In many cases the advertiser is developed by the agency which if it devolved upon individual newspapers would seldom be done on account of the expense as compared with returns. The expense of developing an advertiser for a dozen papers by an agency is no greater than for one paper but the paper would often find it expensive business to get.

The agency's commission covers all the office expenses of placing the business of a hundred clients, and the profits. Thus the agency can place at the disposal of the client its full office equipment of assistants, system and experience without a cent of cost to him.

While recognized by the publisher as his business getter, the agency, in order to conserve its own interest must see that the advertiser gets the very best service obtainable as on that largely depends successful advertising and upon success depends the future increase or continuance of the clients' business. It is less expensive to keep the business of established clients than to be continually compelled to develop new ones. I have dwelt upon this point because the agency's status has been considerably discussed of late, and I wish it to go on record that I thoroughly believe in the principle of placing business through a reliable agency. Of course, there are agencies and agencies—but that's another story.

The following extracts from letters on A. McKim & Co's files, go to show their standing with the newspapers. They like intending advertisers to write to any of their clients or to any Canadian publisher regarding their methods of doing business.

I desire to add my warmest appreciation and thanks for the uniformly kind and meritorious treatment to the "Free Press" by you, and the very prompt and equitable settlements made by you in our dealings covering a period of over fifteen years, without a single omission.

OTTAWA, ONT., FREE PRESS.

We shall always be pleased to consider any offer you may have to make for advertising, as it is always pleasant to do business with you when the prices are right.

ST. JOHN N.B., GLOBE.

There is no one we like better to do business with than A. McKim & Co., but we must have some sort of rate.

VICTORIA, B.C., COLONIST.

I have concluded to take the * * * * * advt. at the price you offer not that I desire it or any other at that price, but it is in consideration of the amount of business we do with you and the promptness with which payments are made, making it a pleasure to do business with you. I would not do it for any one else.

NAPANEE, ONT., BEAVER.

It is a pleasure to do business with those who are so prompt and satisfactory in their remittances as you are.

Hoping for a continuance of your patronage.

TORONTO, ONT., WEEKLY SUN.

We like your style of doing business very much, but as our circulation has trebled in the past two years we think you should be willing to give us better rates.

BERLIN, ONT., RECORD.

In justice to ourselves we must say that of all agencies you are the most correct and regular, and we do not wish to appear as grumblers.

VANCOUVER. B.C., NEWS ADVERTISER.

Such promptness in remitting is a boon these times. Wishing you continued success.

LONDON, ONT., FARMERS ADVOCATE.

We are taking your advertising at lower rates than those of any other agency, because we are better satisfied with your system of paying.

CHATHAM, N.B., WORLD.

Your dealings with us in the past have been very satisfactory.

DURHAM, ONT., GREY REVIEW.

This low rate has been quoted to you from the fact that you are prompt in checking up and on this account you deserve some consideration.

ORILLIA, ONT., NEWS LETTER.

After some experience in dealing with unreliable concerns we have decided that it is better to take matter at a low rate from a good house than at a high rate from a poor house.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., DESPATCH.

Accept our thanks not only for the promptness of your remittance, but as well for the trouble spared us of rendering account.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., CARLETON SENTINEL.

I have never given this rate or its equivalent before and would do so for no other firm.

PICTOU, N.S., COLONIAL STANDARD.

For your very prompt payments and really easy settlements I offer my very best thanks.

OSHAWA, ONT., REFORMER.

We like to do business with you because you pay all your agree to. The fault we find is that you don't agree to pay enough.

COATICOOK, QUE., OBSERVER.

You can send the advts if you think best, the rate is smaller than I like but the payments are very satisfactory and the matter unobjectionable.

PARRSBORO, N.S., LEADER.

Your favor received with cheque in full for account. Accept thanks for your prompt settlement. This is one of the pleasures of doing business with you.

SHERBROOKE, QUE., RECORD.

Extract from editorial.

We have heard strong objections raised by some confreres of the press against legitimate advertising agencies. While the rates they offer are low, there is some satisfaction in dealing with people when there is no question as to pay. The most satisfactory firm we know of doing business in Canada, is Messrs. A. McKim & Co., of Montreal. They are obliging and courteous, prompt in reply, and treat publishers like white men when one visits their offices.

We do not propose in future to deal with strange advertising fakirs except on a spot cash basis. If a reputable firm wants to place advertising, it is well to do it with a reputable agency like McKim's, and the McKim's can look out for their money. Through such agencies we will accept our outside business in future.

COBOURG, ONT., STAR.

The Leading Newspapers of Canada.

There can be no more reliable index to the conditions of intellectual life and the prosperity and advancement of a country than is afforded by its newspapers. A community possessing and sustaining a great daily cannot be other than enlightened and progressive for where the standard of intelligence and of aggregate wealth is not high such a paper could not exist. Not only, therefore, is the existence of great newspapers an assurance of the general prosperity, but from a study of their growth and character can be accurately guaged the distinctive features of the national life. A press, the moral tone of which is healthy bespeaks a similarly healthy condition of society in the constituency to which it appeals, whereas a contrary attribute would not only be baneful in its influences, but denote that the public taste was already corrupt.

In Canada, fortunately, the general tone of the great metropolitan dailies leaves nothing to be desired. There are, it is true, proportionately fewer great representative newspapers in the Dominion than in the Republic across the border, but these few are conspicuous in their importance and influence far beyond the comparative populations of the two countries. An illustration of this fact is best afforded by the Montreal Star, whose circulation has increased with such strides during the last few years that it now stands recognized to be without a competitor in the Dominion. And this can be admitted without any disparagement to the other newspapers of the country, for the Star's circulation and prosperity are so phenomenal as to put it beyond the reach of antagonism or even jealousy. A daily circulation of over 51,000 and a circulation for the weekly edition of more than 100,000, while the total English-speaking population, in men, women and children, of the city of publication (Montreal) is not over 65,000, is something so unprecedented as to excite a wonder which, were it not for the convincing logic of open circulation books, would verge on incredulity. Its explanation lies in the fact that the reputation of the Star as a newspaper has become so great that its reading clientelle has far exceeded the usual confines of a newspaper's contituency, and embraces not only the entire Dominion but extends also into the neighboring States of the Union.

Naturally so great a result has been the outcome of business methods of the soundest nature, and it is probably not too much to say that the Montreal Star can teach the greatest papers of the United States and Canada much that is of vital interest to the advertiser and to the advertising agent. The actual circulation of the paper is printed from day to day, and through this best of all means the Star says to the advertiser: "That is what we are selling you. Before paying for it, check it, and see if you are getting it. If not, don't pay."

The Montreal Star is to-day the largest one-cent paper in the world, without any exception. Recently it celebrated its Jubilee year. It had something to celebrate, too, for the Daily Star's circulation had risen to over 51,000, and the Weekly Star's to over 100,000. This circulation—and it is a point worth noting—is among the best people of the country, that of the weekly being amongst the sturdy yeomanry of the provinces. On this occasion of its Jubilee the Star received congratulatory messages from scores of prominent papers in this country, Great Britain and the United States, and from prominent advertisers the world over. Among the papers from whom messages were received were the following:

The Toronto Mail, Ottawa Citizen, Ottawa Journal, Halifax Herald, London, Ont. Advertiser, New York World, New York Journal, Boston Globe, Boston Herald, Philadelphia Record, London, Eng., Daily Mail, and Leeds, Eng., Mercury.

The circulation table of official figures that has been published and which is republished here, is significant.

OFFICIAL FIGURES

FOUR LEADING PAPERS OF CANADA

ONE MONTREAL PAPER EQUALS ALL THE OTHERS COMBINED.

Montreal Daily Star	51,500	154,000
Montreal Weekly Star ("The Family Herald and Weekly Star")	102,500
Toronto Daily Globe	34,805	57,805
Toronto Weekly Globe	23,000
Toronto Daily Mail	30,500	49,500
Toronto Weekly Mail	19,000
Montreal Daily Witness	14,500	43,500
Montreal Weekly Witness	29,000

In singling out the Star as the leading representative paper of Canada it is no disparagement of great papers like the Toronto "Globe" and "Mail", both of which readily concede the Star's superlative position.

GENTLEMEN,—

It gives us great pleasure to give our testimony as to the wonderful result producing power of your paper. We, as you know, are and have been large advertisers in all the leading Ontario papers, having used both the condensed and display columns of nearly all the dailies in the Province.

We are therefore in a position to speak comparatively of the merits as advertising mediums of the newspapers in Ontario, and we most unhesitatingly say that The News has been for our business by far the best medium. We have used your "want" columns with wonderful success, and your display columns very extensively, and with equally good results.

We do not wish to depreciate the value of other mediums, which we are, and have been using, but we think it but fair, to let you know that for the purposes of our business, The News is certainly the best advertising medium, and we have tried them all.

Yours truly,

THE R. S. WILLIAMS & SONS CO., LIMITED,

A. MCKIM & CO., NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING AGENCY, MONTREAL.

THERE are one and a half million of people in the Province of Quebec, the region of which Montreal is the centre.

There are 300,000 in Montreal and suburbs alone. Montreal is the largest city in the Dominion — it is growing.

The French-Canadian of the Province of Quebec is one of a ruling race. The popular idea about him is wrong.

He is not a foreigner. He is one of the people — he is the people.

Eighty per cent of the inhabitants of the Province of Quebec are French-Canadians. They are an intelligent, well read class of people. They transact most of the business and hold most of the offices in the Province. They have supplied some of the best men in the Dominion.

The French-Canadians are not a colony—they are a nation. They have a grip on the country that it will be hard to loosen.

For the advertiser to attempt to reach this large and influential people through the English papers in Canada is folly.

They are French, and they read French literature, French books, French papers. Why, the French language is recognised in Parliament. The minutes of all proceedings and debates are printed in both French and English. A speech in the House may be made either language. Court records are kept in the same way.

Naturally, therefore, the French-Canadians support a number of French newspapers, and a knowledge of these is a "sine qua non" of the advertiser who would be seccessful in the Province of Quebec.

"LA PRESSE" of Montreal is the French paper of Canada. It stands head and shoulders above all the rest.

It is probably the most progressive French paper in the world.

It has applied American business methods to French journalism.

It stands on a little pinnacle of its own.

The field which "LA PRESSE" covers is Montreal city first to a very large extent; also, Quebec, Levis, Ottawa, Hull, St. Hyacinthe, in fact, all the large cities of the Province of Quebec.

There is no other medium in Canada which so thoroughly covers the Province of Quebec as "LA PRESSE."

To-day the actual average circulation of "LA PRESSE" is over 66,200 copies daily. The Saturday edition is about 70,000 to 85,000. It prints no Sunday edition.

"LA PRESSE" Building is a handsome six-story structure on St. James Street, Montreal. The paper is printed on four Goss Duplex presses. It employs 200 hands. It owns and uses ten Mergenthaler typesetting machines. Also a complete photo-engraving plant. It requires thirty patent wagons to make deliveries to city agents only.

It is a success.

It is an influential and valuable advertising medium. Everybody who knows anything about Canadian advertising knows that this is so.

The French-Canadian is a power in the land. He cannot be ignored. He makes a good customer. It might be well for the advertiser to go after him through "LA PRESSE."

The advertiser has a right to know the circulation of the paper he patronizes—"LA PRESSE" is ready to prove—

Our books are open to each advertiser, and a written guarantee accompanies every contract, if so desired.

There is no other paper in Canada which affords such facilities of proving circulation as "LA PRESSE."

"LA PRESSE" IS THE LARGEST DAILY IN CANADA WITHOUT EXCEPTION, FRENCH OR ENGLISH.

The circulation of "LA PRESSE" is larger than that of all the other French Daily newspapers in Canada put together.

The circulation of "LA PRESSE" is larger than that of any French newspaper published in America.

Thousands of satisfied advertisers have testified to the sterling qualities of "LA PRESSE" as an advertising medium.

The Value of...

The Globe

TORONTO, CANADA,

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM is easiest estimated by the voluntary expression of those who have used it continuously for years.

TAKE THESE AS A SAMPLE OF HUNDREDS OF OTHERS THAT CAN BE GIVEN IF WE HAD THE SPACE AND YOU HAD THE TIME TO READ THEM.

The Gurney Foundry Comp'y, Toronto.

You are well aware that we have been quite extensive advertisers for the past half century, and that among the mediums we have consistently and continuously used during that time The GLOBE has taken a foremost rank. It goes without saying that we should not have continuously used the Daily and Weekly Globe as a medium did not we consider that it catered to a large and widely scattered constituency which it is our desire to reach. To epitomise, we would say in a few words, that we consider the GLOBE one of the best advertising mediums in Canada.

S. C. Wells & Co., New York.

Your Mr. A. C. McPhee has asked us to send you our expressions of your paper, and in doing so, would say very briefly we consider "The Globe" one of the best, if not the best, advertising medium in Canada. The fact that we have increased our contract the coming year, over previous years would be an indication of what we think of the value of "The Globe" as an advertising medium.

The J. E. Ellis Co. Toronto.

Mr. Norman G. Ellis, Sec.-Treasurer, writes:—We take great pleasure in writing you to state the results of our advertising in your paper, especially for our Christmas trade. As you know, we contracted for a page in your illustrated Saturday edition; the result in actual returns that we could trace to this "ad" simply astounds us. We might say that our cash returns from this particular "ad" were five times greater than we ever expected, and we attribute our exceptionally large increase in December to the results of our advertising in your paper, and would on no account let our contract expire. Hoping that you can do as well for your other advertisers as you have done for us, believe us to be steady advertisers in The Globe.

John N. Lake, Real Estate Broker Hamilton.

Mr. John N. Lake writes:—I think it is only fair to say that, while I have been advertising for nearly thirty years as a real estate dealer, I have always found The Globe one of the best mediums to reach the public. But of late I have had special reason to praise your paper. I had a special piece of property for sale, also a patented article suitable for the farmers. I advertised an equal number of times in 51 different papers, all professing to reach the parties desired, and got more inquiries from Globe readers than all the others combined.

Pope Manuf'g Co., Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Hunts, Advertising Manager of Columbia Bicycles, says:—We are well pleased with our advertising in The Globe this year, and selected your publication because inquiry and observation led us to believe that The Globe was one of the best advertising mediums in Canada.

Dominion Radiator Company.

Mr. John F. Taylor, Sec.-Manager, says in his letter of June 6th, 1898:—Of all the large dailies for advertising we prefer The Globe.

Humphreys' Medicine Comp'y, New York.

We have always included The Globe in our list for Canada, now some twenty years, as we have always known it to be one of the leading papers of the Dominion.

James Pyle & Sons New York.

We hold newspaper advertising to be the strong arm of success in making and holding a business similar to ours; hence, we have used The Globe for such purpose continually for years, deeming its circulation the largest in its field, and its constituency of the best.

The Slater Shoe Co Montreal.

If you wish to use this interview so as to state that "we have received from one catalogue ad. in The Globe more mail replies than from any other morning paper in Canada" you may do so, for it is a fact, to which I cheerfully subscribe.—J. P. McConnell, Adv. Manager.

The above is enough to convince the thoughtful advertiser who wants results that every copy of The Globe is like a well directed bullet, it hits the bull's-eye and scores.

THE DAILY GLOBE COVERS THE RICHEST FIELD IN CANADA AND AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM HAS NO EQUAL IN THE DOMINION.

As to the relative values of the different classes of general media, I may say briefly from my own experience that we have found religious papers to bring the best returns. These papers are read by people who prize them very highly, and who read them thoroughly. Nine-tenths of these papers are read by paying subscribers. I have often wished that the secular weeklies had the same strong hold upon their readers. But they do not. They are read very little in a thorough manner. People buy them for their caricatures, etc. They do not have much of a subscription circulation. Theirs is mostly a news-stand sale.—The Quaker Oats Man, in Advertising Experience.

FARMING

The only Weekly Agricultural Journal in Canada.

WITH IT IS INCORPORATED The Ontario Agricultural Gazette

The official organ of the Dominion Cattle, Sheep, and Swine Breeder's Associations, and of the Farmers Institute System of the Great Agricultural Province of Ontario.

It is read by every officer and member of these important Associations, comprising the leading stock raisers of the Dominion and by more than 10,000 prominent farmers and their families as well.

It covers the whole ground

Farm, dairy, orchard, garden, opiary, poultry, etc., from the preparation of the soil, on feeding, breeding and management of the stock, the sowing and growing of the crop to the marketing of the products as a final result. For 17 years Farming has maintained its characters as the Canadian Farmer's business paper and is read by him for its practical value and not for pastime. Hence, its advertisements are looked for and eagerly read by every one of its subscribers.

No other medium can give its advertisers as good results for the money expended and this is proved by the testimony of many of the leading manufacturers and dealers in farmers' supplies in Canada. Send for copy of their testimonials—or better still write to them direct for information. Their names will be furnished cheerfully on application. Rates are exceptionally low for the service rendered. Full information as to circulation, rates and territory covered will be given to prospective advertisers at any time.

No other trade publication in this country has so large a list of subscribers. No other is sent to so many different post offices. No other reaches so many different classes of business people, and no other is read by so desirable a constituency.

We are honest in making these claims.

Our representatives have visited most of the cities, towns and villages throughout Canada, and in addition to knowing how thoroughly this paper is distributed, we also have learned considerable about other papers–where and what class of subscribers they have.

GOLD! RAT PORTAGE, population 7,000 and rapidly growing; the centre of the largest and richest free-milling gold district on earth. The gold out-put for Dec. 1898 was over $50,000, which will be largely increased, month by month, as many new stamps get in operation. Rat Portage is also the lumber supply depot of Western Canada and the centre of the most important inland fisheries of the continent; and is at the head of 300 miles of navigable waters connecting it with the mines and the agricultural lands of Rainy River. Everybody in this rich new district reads which also has a large circulation among mining men and others in Eastern Canada and the United States interested in the district.

Do not allow the Newspapers to set your Advertisements.

The ordinary newspaper compositor has neither the time nor the skill required to set attractive advts., nor has the country office proper equipment in the shape of new borders and striking type faces.

It pays to have setting done by trained advt. compositors—then to have plates made and sent to each paper on the list.

Our Stereo plate, with patent base, enables advertisers to use a series of advts at a small cost. All we require is an original plate of each advt. We make the duplicate plates, pack and ship to individual addresses as instructed.

The largest Advertisers use our plates and find them satisfactory.

Sample base and plate with estimate on application.

Montreal Advertising Plate Co. MONTREAL, QUE.

The following was printed from one of our Stereos.

Quick Soap
SURPRISE Soap cleans clothes quickest and cleanest.
It's a harmless soap—It isn't a clothes eater.
It won't injure the fabric of a cobweb.
No more scalding, boiling or hard rubbing. No more red, sore hands—no more streaked or yellow clothes—if you use SURPRISE.
A large cake that lasts a long time costs but 5 cents.
Be sure you get the genuine.
Remember the name—
"SURPRISE."

The St. Hyacinthe Courrier

The population of the town of St. Hyacinthe and surrounding suburbs numbers more than 15,000 souls and that of district which comprises 3 counties exceeds, 75,000 inhabitants.

The Courrier of St. Hyacinthe whose circulation is considerably more than all the Journals published in the district, offers advantages seldom equalled for its modesty of prices and for the varied class and number of its readers.

In effect the district of St. Hyacinthe is a center given up almost exclusively to Agriculture, to the making of Butter and Cheese. Farming implements and everything that is necessary to the achievement of Dairies and Cheese factories find here a good market, always on the increase.

The Neepawa Press

IS admitted by all critics to be the most up-to-date paper, in both style and matter, that is published in Manitoba. It has few, if any, equals in any town of similar size anywhere. The Press is a Peerless Paper. It has a capable editor and manager of a quarter of a century's experience in Newspaper and Job Printing work in city and country offices, devoting his every talent with energy and enthusiasm to his work. What makes such a paper a possibility in a place like Neepawa, with less than 2,000 population, is the compact settlement of well-to-do and intelligent English-speaking farmers surrounding the town into the homes of every one of whom the Press goes regularly, twice a week, giving them more local news in each issue than any of its provincial contemporaries do in their tardy once-a-weeks, besides an extensive summary of the world's news compiled up to the day of publication. Thus the Neepawa Press satisfies the reading wants of the farming and working classes, by giving them eight pages of general news and advertising more promptly and in better form than city weeklies, and much cheaper and more suitable than the dailies. Its advertising columns are extensively used, and those who do so judiciously get good results. Rates are $100 per column per year for home-print pages, and $50 for ready-print pages, for once-a-week insertions; or $150 per column per year for home-print and $74 for ready-print pages for twice a week. Sample copies sent on application; but don't waste time writing for reduced rates.

The St. Thomas Journal

JAMES S. BRIERLEY, Publisher.

The EVENING JOURNAL is the pioneer daily of St. Thomas, the capital of Elgin County, and a City of 11,715 inhabitants, situated in one of the most thickly-settled and prosperous parts of Ontario. St. Thomas is the most important railway centre in Western Ontario, the lines of the Michigan Central, Wabash, Grand Trunk, Canadian Pacific and Lake Erie & River passing through it. The shops of the Michigan Central and Grand Trunk employing hundreds of men, are also located here. The assessors' returns of 1899 show an increase of 561 in the population, and the City is still growing.

The railroads make tributary to St. Thomas a very extended tract of rich country that The Evening Journal thoroughly covers. This edition goes in hundreds of copies each night to the fine thriving towns of Simcoe, Tilsonburg, Glencoe Dutton, Rodney, Delhi, Aylmer, Ridgetown, West Lorne, Alvinston, and scores of smaller places. Thus it is that the circulation is perhaps the largest in Canada, if not on the continent of any daily published in a city of similar size.

By special deliveries, by stages, by railways, and by the ordinary process of the mail, THE JOURNAL is delivered every night to thousands of people residing on farms and in the villages and towns of the Southern Counties. Where the Daily cannot be sent the Weekly is.
